

Adomasite ingots are used in the construction process. While the precise origin of this ore remains unknown, it is likely that it was named after the chemical compound known as "adamsite", which was first created by Roger Adams during World War I. Adamsite is a yellow irritant smoke, which contains a poisonous form of arsenic. Exposure to adamsite vapors would result in irritation to the eyes, lungs, and various bodily mucous membranes. Adomasite seems to be much less volatile than its Earth-based form, though its implementation in laser and explosive weaponry may prove more lethal than its predecessor.

Over the last week there has been a total of 29 listings for this item. Out of those 29 listings 7 ended with a sale.

Glam Ingot

This Glam Ingot can be used in conjunction with a BLUEPRINT to manufacture ROCK n ROLL gear, weapons and merchandise. Upon the inception of the Music Planet, NEVERDIE commissioned a team of top geologists to survey the natural resources with the NEVERDIE solar system. During the course of the survey, wild parties and endless club nights took a heavy toll of the fine minds of the geologists. After they mysteriously abandoned their base camp for reasons unknown all that remained of their survey work were bar napkins with drawings of ores and enmatters names after cocktails and musical genres.
